LET NOT MY NAME BE LOST

Dear reader,

This topic bridges the past, present, and future. In ancient manuscripts, we are told that the first man and woman were given authority by the Creator to name all that He had made. In obedience to this command, humanity has continued to name people, places, and things—an act that signifies both authority and relationship with the Creator. The ability to name is uniquely human; it reflects our dominion, understanding, and continuity across generations.

We name everything we can see, hear, touch, or experience—whether visible or invisible.

It is remarkable how a single name, often suggested by one person or a small group, can endure for centuries.

Naming is not merely a means of identification; it carries weight in shaping perceptions, influencing character, and preserving legacies.

Throughout history, great men and women have sought to ensure that their names would not be forgotten. The Pharaohs of Egypt built pyramids to immortalize their reigns. Kings, warriors, and scholars have inscribed their names on monuments, tombs, and historical records. Even today, we erect statues, name streets, buildings, and institutions after individuals, all in an effort to preserve a Name.

But this leads to an important question: Will my name be lost when I am gone?

Celebrities, politicians, and leaders strive for fame—not only for influence but also in the hope that their names will endure beyond their lifetimes. Yet history has shown that over time, even the most famous names fade into obscurity.

However, there is One who lived, died, and rose again, and He declares that your name will never be lost—if His Name is not lost in your life. Jesus Christ offers to exchange His Name for yours, ensuring that your name is written where it truly matters (Heaven). It is not our worldly status, achievements, or elaborate funerals that determine whether our names will endure. The true measure is what we did to uphold and honor His Name. If His Name is not lost in our lives, then neither will ours be lost in eternity.

Believing in Him marks your name with an indelible significance that no earthly recognition can match. This is not about adopting His Name as a mere label, but about living in a way that reflects Him—bringing glory to His Name rather than our own. If we seek recognition for ourselves above Him, then we are not keeping His Name alive; we are instead allowing it to fade.

Many religions claim to be the right path, but the real question is not about religion—it is about eternity. How can you ensure that your name is not lost?

Jesus Christ of Nazareth promises that if His Name is alive in you, your name will never be forgotten. Do you believe that?
